

Although I am presently a customer of an Incumbent Local Exchange Carrier, I believe very strongly that all ILECs should share their essential facilities with independent service providers, so that all consumers have cable alternatives for speed and latency. Government telecommunications policy should always be regulated appropriately for the public interest.